Examines contexts, theories, practice models and skill development in specialized fields of practice.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This online elective course introduces the concept of aging, including definitions of aging and biological, cognitive and psychosocial correlates of aging. The course emphasizes critical examination of representations of aging, explores aging and related issues in social work practice with older adults and their families, communities and societies and examines a broad range of theories and contemporary issues related to aging and social work practice with older adults and their families. Domains of inquiry include biological, psychological, and sociological perspectives on aging and older adults. Students will critically examine the social constructions of old age, social work values and ethics, and social work practice within an aging society at the individual, community, and institutional levels. Social and economic justice, evidence-based practice, and capacity building will be highlighted throughout the course. Students will participate in applied learning projects as an integral part of this course. Professional communication skills will be practiced. Throughout the course, we will discuss how to apply the tenets of evidence-based practice to the theories and issues that impact aging. The purpose of this course is to highlight the key issues that face the emerging generation of diverse, heterogeneous older adults, as well as social workers and other professionals who will serve them.

This course has no pre-requisites or co-requisites.

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Identify and describe the trends, issues, and challenges related to aging and discuss their implications for aging in our society.
2. Explain and evaluate the theories of aging.
3. Apply theories of aging to practice with older adults and their families.
4. Identify and critically analyze a range of policy and programs designed to support an aging society.

5. Take responsibility as professional social workers to confront biases and stereotypes about older adults and to educate others about later years in life.
6. Adopt and apply an anti-ageist approach in their social work practice with individuals, families, and communities.

ASSESSMENT COMPONENTS

Assessment Method	Assessment Description & Criteria	Due Date	Weight	Aligned Course Learning Outcome
Assignment 1: Ethnographic interview with older adults and a reflection paper	Students will have an ethnographic interview with an older adult.03. Find an older person who is aged 70 or older. Try to interview someone you do not know or know only vaguely. Use a recording device (that will allow you to record verbatim what the person says); and have a series of questions prepared in advance, with probes. Aim for a 30-45 minute conversation covering the topics suggested (a list will be posted on D2L) and feel free to add additional topics of your own interests. Students are instructed not to take notes during the interview but to pay 100% attention to the conversation instead. After the interview, write a reflection paper including appropriate quotes from the person (2000-3000 words); we want to hear how they speak about aging. Course-based ethics will be submitted by instructor and approved before conducting this assignment. Further details and assessment rubric will be posted on D2L.	Feb 19	25%	2, 3, 5, 6
Assignment 2: Op-ed essay	Students will write an op-ed essay about an aging related topic of your interest. An Op-ed (Opposite the Editorial) is a newspaper opinion piece from contributors not affiliated with the editorial board. The purpose of an op-ed is to sway public opinion and change minds using convincing arguments, presenting it in a concise, readable way. As a social worker, writing an op-ed is one of the many ways to apply the learnings from the classroom to the	Mar 11	25%	All

For extra credit (1 point out of 25 points), forward me an email showing that you sent your op-ed to an online or print publication, seeking to have it published. Further details and assessment rubric will be posted on D2L.
Assignment 3: Infographic	Infographic is a method of visualizing data or ideas that conveys complex information to an audience in manner that can be quickly consumed and easily understood. It is very effective as a tool for communicating ideas and displaying large amounts of information relatively quickly. Infographic combines text, graphics, and images together in a way that is aesthetically appealing and engaging to viewers. Students will create an infographic poster that will help others better understand an issue or concept related to aging. Present your infographic poster by posting it on D2L and facilitating the discussion among peers. Presenters should post their complete infographic by the deadline that you are assigned. All students will read the presentation and respond to at least 2 postings. Presenters are expected to re-respond to peers’ responses. Try to balance across the postings. If somebody has already posted responses, try to respond to other postings. Further details and assessment rubric will be posted on D2L.	Mar 23 Mar 30 April 6	25%	All
